Potions of the Wizarding World

A

Ageing Potion -- A potion that, depending on the amount taken, temporarily ages the drinker to various ages. It is green in color.

Alihotsy Draught -- A potion made from the Alihotsy plant; causes hysterical laughter. It has blue fumes and a blue color.

Amortentia -- The world's strongest Love Potion; does not create real love, just powerful obsession. Horace Slughorn showed it to his sixth years in 1996; later Romilda Vane added it to a chocolate meant for Harry Potter, but instead, it was consumed by Ronald Weasley. The potion has a mother-of-pearl sheen, and steam rises from it in spirals. Its scent varies based on what the drinker finds attractive.

Angel's Trumpet Draught -- Almost certainly a poison. Its exact appearance is unknown, but it is presumed to be a poisonous potion containing Angel's Trumpet.

Anti-Paralysis Potion -- A potion that heals paralysis. It is pink in color.

Antidote to Common Poisons -- A potion that reverses the effects of commaon poisons. Contains Bezoar, Mistletoe Berries, and Unicorn Horns. Mentioned in Magical Draughts and Potions by Arsenius Jigger. It is teal--colored.

Antidote to Uncommon Poisons -- A potion that reverses the effects of uncommon poisons. It is green in color.

Antidote to Veritaserum -- A potion that removes the effects of Veritaserum. Albus Dumbledore believed that Horace Slughorn might be carrying it in 1996. No specific texture or viscosity details are mentioned.

Armadillo Bile Mixture -- Unknown. While its exact appearance is unclear, it is likely corrosive, and its lid must be kept closed at all times.

B

Babbling Beverage -- A potion that causes uncontrollable speaking of nonsense. It is red or yellow in color and smells like bubblegum.

Baneberry Potion -- A poisonous brew of unknown exact effect. It is blood red in color.

Baruffio's Brain Elixir -- A potion that apparently increases the taker's brain power. It is green in color.

Beautification Potion -- A potion that makes the taker very beautiful. It changes color and emits multi-colored bubbles.

Befuddlement Draught -- A potion that makes the taker confused and reckless. It can be dark green, red, or purple in color.

Beguiling Bubbles -- A Love Potion sold at Weasleys' Wizard Wheezes. It is red in color.

Black Fire Potion -- A potion that makes the taker able to move through black fire uninjured. It is blue in color and induces a sensation of ice flooding the body.

Blemish Blitzer -- A potion that most likely gets rid of acne. It is white in color and has a thick paste consistency.

Blood-Replenishing Potion -- A potion that replenishes the taker's blood if they have been injured and lost blood. It is dark red in color.

Bloodroot Poison -- A poisonous potion. Its exact appearance is unknown.

Bruise Removal Paste -- A paste invented by Fred and George Weasley to remove bruises. It is a thick yellow paste.

Bulgeye Potion -- Presumed to make the taker's eyes swell. It is emerald green in color.

Bundimun Pomade -- A potion that is presumably a hair pomade containing Bundimun secretion. Its exact appearance is unknown.

Bundimun Secretion -- A magical substance that, when diluted, is known to be used in some magical cleaning products. It is lime green in color and emits vapors.

Burn-Healing Paste -- A thick paste used to heal burns. It is orange in color and has a thick consistency.
